

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for switching optical signals by selectively routing such signals through a packet switch is disclosed. Depending upon predetermined traffic conditions in data being 5 received and transmitted, the system may be provisioned to provide circuit like optical switching, or a mixture of optical and packet switching. An exemplary growable optical switch architecture is disclosed in the preferred embodiment.